CERN Analysis Preservation: A Case Study

R. Dasler\textsuperscript{1}, X. Chen\textsuperscript{1}, S. Dallmeier-Tiessen\textsuperscript{1}, A. Dani\textsuperscript{1}, J. Delgado Fernandez\textsuperscript{1}, P. Fokianos\textsuperscript{1}, P. Herterich\textsuperscript{1}, and T. Simko\textsuperscript{1}

\textsuperscript{1}European Organization for Nuclear Research (CERN), Meyrin, Geneva, Switzerland

Corresponding Author: R. Dasler, robin.dasler@cern.ch

CERN is developing a new service to manage and preserve high-energy physics experimental analysis packages in support of Open Science. This is an ambitious new service that relies heavily on direct engagement with users in each of CERN’s experimental groups.